

Peace of Mind

There's a never-ending battle going on in my mind, in my mind.

It says time has run out on me and sorrow's all I'll find, all I'll find.

There's no peace of mind, not for me, not for me.

Stop the voices raging; stop the noise they're making, set me free, to be me.

With this never-ending chatter going on in my mind, in my mind.

There's no peace, there's no peace, there's no peace of mind.

It all started when I left my home and job all behind, all behind.

And went out into the world my fortune for to find, for to find.

There's no place of peace, not for me, not for me.

I must stop the voices talking; stop the things they're saying, set me free, to be me.

I'm alone now and it's louder, yes much louder in my mind, in my mind.

There's no peace, there's no peace, there's no peace of mind.

If I turn to love, then they stop and are still, and are still.

So, it's love that I need, to fulfill, yes fulfill.

Now I've stopped the voices calling in my mind, in my mind.

And there's peace, yes with love comes peace of mind, peace of mind.